

Erfan Farahani &lt;erfan@titanglobal.ai&gt;

---

Pulse upgrade — adding a one-paragraph "Taitan Take" under every article

---

Dan Waldschmidt <daniel.waldschmidt@gmail.com>

Wed, May 27, 2026 at 8:13 PM

To: Erfan Farahani &lt;erfan@titanglobal.ai&gt;

Cc: Danielle Ahmadi &lt;danielle@titanglobal.ai&gt;, Jason Roos &lt;jason@titanglobal.ai&gt;

Morning, Erfan —

Per our conversation earlier today — I want to upgrade Pulse so it isn't just a news aggregator with outbound links. Every story we feature should carry a single-paragraph piece of original Taitan-authored analysis sitting directly underneath the headline. We stop being a link farm and start owning the content.

Calling it the "Taitan Take" for now. Could just as easily be the Taitan Perspective, the Taitan Lens, whatever lands — naming is the easy part.

The mechanism is simple. When an article enters your pipeline, pass it through the prompt I've attached. The LLM returns a single paragraph (120–180 words, hard ceiling, 5–7 sentences) written in the voice of a Vision 2030–fluent business strategist. That paragraph drops in directly below the article on pulse.titanglobal.ai.

The prompt is tool-agnostic — works on whatever LLM API you're already running. Drop the system block into your system prompt slot, pass the article text into the user message, and you'll get the "Take" back. Settings, model floor, and a QA checklist are at the bottom of the file.

Two things I'd love from you:

1. Wire it up against five sample articles and let's review the outputs so I can pressure-test the voice before we ship to the site.
2. Tell me the minimum lift on the front end to render the Take below each article on the live page — and what your timeline looks like.

I just ran this prompt on this article I found on Taitan Pulse: <https://www.prnewswire.com/news-releases/greenberg-traurig-represents-taiba-on-sar-2-4bus633-4m-joint-venture-with-osool-for-development-of-3-hotels-in-kingdom-of-saudi-arabia-302778124.html>

And here is the Taitan Take that my prompt automatically creates:

A $633M hotel joint venture in Madinah looks parochial until it is framed against the Vision 2030 religious-tourism pillar that most readers forget exists alongside the AI and NEOM headlines. Madinah recorded 82% hotel occupancy in Q1 2026 — the highest of any Saudi city — which is why Taiba and Osool are funding 1,500 new rooms under both local and international brands. The misread to correct is that Vision 2030 is a chip-and-giga-project story; it is also a religious-tourism and consumer-infrastructure story with structurally captive demand that does not depend on global capex cycles. Greenberg Traurig — a 3,100-lawyer US firm that only opened in Riyadh in 2023 and Abu Dhabi in 2025 — structuring deals of this size three years in tells you institutional confidence in Saudi transaction volume is real. For Silicon Valley operators in hospitality tech, payments, identity, revenue management, or applied AI for travel, the religious-tourism corridor is a sovereign-scale buyer table — and precisely the kind of bridge Taitan Global brings American companies to.

Adding Jason and Danielle to ensure I am not leading you astray.

Thanks, Erfan — let me know what you need from me to move on this.

DAN WALDSCHMIDT 202-368-6768

---

TAITAN-TAKE-Master-Prompt.md

10K